For sixty-two years, Master Chin Kung expounded the Buddhadharma while tirelessly and respectfully practicing the principle that "Of all offerings, the offering of the Dharma is supreme" to honor Buddhas. Master practiced in accordance with the teachings, benefited and accepted and upheld sentient beings, alleviated the sufferings of sentient beings through teaching, diligently cultivated good roots, never departed the bodhisattva's vows, and remained steadfast in his bodhi mind —all of which were integral to his daily conduct.
